BAR ASSOCIATION NEWS

Right to be present in Court

The Superior Court recently vacated a termination of parental rights decree because the court denied an ill party to return to the courtroom. In the Int. of A.N.P., 2017 PA Super 21 (Jan. 30, 2017) the Mother left the courtroom, claiming she felt ill, and the trial court excused her but then ruled that Mother had waived her right to present her own testimony by leaving the courtroom without leave of court, and it refused to allow her counsel to present her testimony on direct examination to refute the evidence against her. The Superior Court in its opinion included several pages of the transcript, and danced around admonishing the trial judge, of note the Judge stated:

THE COURT: Oh, and I'm not allowing her to come back in. So that testimony is out the window because she walked out without permission of the Court. Even if she was sick she should have had the courtesy to let me know that. So her disdain for the Court has been so noted. Keep going.

The Superior Court held that “the trial court ran afoul of section 2513(b) of the Adoption Act and sections 6337 and 6338 of the Juvenile Act, as well as Rule 15.4 of the Orphans’ Court Rules, and Pa.R.J.C.P 1608(1). . . by violat(ing) Mother’s constitutional guarantee to due process when it precluded her from the opportunity to be heard.”

In dicta, as referenced above the Court noted, “On remand, and in the future, we remind the trial court that . . .the Code of Judicial Conduct requires judges to be patient, dignified, and courteous to litigants, jurors, witnesses, lawyers, and others with whom they deal in their official capacity....” Our courts are forums for the assertion and vindication of rights. The integrity and independence of our courts mandate that those who seek to assert those rights should not be told to “suck it up.” Our trial courts should not indicate, expressly or implicitly, that they are “not interested” in a person’s rights, nor should they instruct defendants to “tell the [Superior Court] about your rights.” In the Int. of A.N.P., Supra.
